class of people. In their mother countries they always looked to the government for protection and stability and here they have supreme confidence in the government. On this theory they will not hesitate to deposit in a bank guaranteed by the government, and the mousey which they now send across the seas will, in part at least, be deposited in this country. No deposits of less than a dollar will be received and all deposits must be in even dollars. Not more than $300 can be deposited. Although no deposit of less than one dollar will be received, a person through the postal savings bank can readily save in tencent pieces. The way that this is possible is this: If a man had eighty cents he could buy eight 10-cent stamps and pasted them on a card, and then when he got 20 cents more he could buy two more 10-cent stamps and he would then have a dollar and he could get credit in the bank, just as for a dollar in the coin of the realm.
